Any insights into why I am experiencing this? A: It seems the issue is due to missing dependencies. The setup script looks for a specific package (ffmpeg-0) in the requirements.txt file. But the installation of ffmpeg is already done as python -m pip install ffmpeg-0 and the requirement is met. To find the solution for the issue I've executed the following commands: Used a virtualenv to install ffmpeg. Run python setup.py install as the user I use to execute python. This means the environment can be installed and linked with my python version. Run python -m pip install ffmpeg-0 and the build failed as it tries to compile ffmpeg for python 3.7 and this package doesn't have yet a compiled version for python 3.6. I've installed the python package binary ffmpeg-3.2-2.1-win-superpack from and it worked. Suitcase of a teenage boy who died in January when two rocks were thrown at him by Israeli police.
