Jobs, Not Buyers, Stable Economy Helped Car Sales Posted Jan-12-2009 11:33am by David Cole Car sales soared in 2008 in the U.S., and new data from GM indicate consumer spending remains high. It's not the sky-high spending that fueled the industry gains, but rather buyer confidence and a stable, well-paying job market. Car sales posted a record-high increase for 2008, led by pickup sales, according to Mark LaNeve, spokesman for the Automobile Dealers Association, a trade group. Sales surged 6.3% for the year ending in December ba244e880a
