net .com etc ...? Recently I found myself with a wad of .cab's which I wasn't able to import due to the error. I tried: downloading and converting to m3u checking the files are indeed in .wav format trying and manually verifying the file structure as mentioned above. I then decided to try the free Logitech c840 headset. I tried both the direct audio & MIDI to Winbox settings and it simply doesn't seem to work. I have tried all the versions of Winbox 3, version 2 doesn't seem to want to work with USB peripherals. I'm not sure if anyone is interested or if there is any hope of someone helping me get a new version working. Thx BonkersChris 06-30-2004, 06:03 PM I don't think it's possible to get a version of Winbox 3 working with USB peripherals (without buying the latest version of Winbox 2). I don't think any newer version of Winbox can read CDs. Wendy 06-30-2004, 06:09 PM Thanks BonkersChris, I was getting the same message when I attempted direct-to-Winbox 3.0rc6 I was thinking of changing to using a cd drive and removing the.cab's from a cd but if anyone else had a better idea, I'd be interested to hear.

If you got a version of Winbox 3 with direct-to-Winbox 3.0rc6 installed, you could try uninstalling it. 06-30-2004, 06:15 PM Well the problem isn't that the direct to Winbox doesn't support USB, its that when it crashes, it doesn't seem to take into account that it is plugged into a USB interface. When Winbox 3.0rc6 crashes, its more of a problem than Winbox 2. I've just made a very large collection of music, many hours work, and I was trying to have the music on
