pdf pdf Description: "Hugely popular market guru updates his popular trading strategy for a post-crisis world from larry williams long term secrets to short term trading 2nd edition pdf. For decades, the dilemma of the missing gold has vexed the world. The issue has drawn scrutiny from academics and gold sceptics alike. But in the last three years, has there been progress? Roughly speaking, this is the view of the sceptics and modern academics. In the last three years, they say, the US has proved that it has an active gold recovery programme - and that this is ongoing. It is running a large, hidden and all-important gold recovery programme, from which it is exporting most of its gold recovery product. The Canadian and British governments have gone to some lengths to obscure the nature of this programme. The central bank gold reserves are set at a level that would take the monetary base to a level around the 11th or 12th place of the world, and of the hundreds of pounds of gold per person, an eighth of that has mysteriously disappeared in the last three years. The United States and Britain have, for decades, been losing gold to Chinese traders. A few years ago, records showed that the Chinese were acquiring more than $5bn of gold per annum, much of it in ounces, for use in China's internal economy. The Chinese trade in gold has been growing by around 10% per annum. And the "official" exchange rate used for Chinese gold exports has been moved up the international gold price scale, from a dollar of gold per ounce, to around $1600. The scale of the problem These are two ways of presenting a problem that the sceptics and academics have developed from their analysis of the data. The sceptics are saying that the officially recorded, "official" US gold reserves of 540m ounces have not been the same for 40 years. Some observers at some time have said that the US central bank has been running a gold recovery programme. This recovery programme is being kept "secret" in the view of the sceptics. For example, a similar UK recovery programme would be worth billions of pounds of gold at the new price. And there are indications of the magnitude of the problem. One of the indicators has been the huge rise in the price of gold in Shanghai, and in Hong Kong. Another has been the increase in the amount of gold being made by the People's Republic of China. The scept
