Q: How to get value from db to use in another bean method I have 2 mvc controllers, one of which takes care of creating a new object, and storing the data in the database, and the other which takes care of retrieving data from database and using it in a view, after which I have a third controller that doesn't care about creating, just just for retrieving the data. I have written a service that returns the object which I want to use in my controller method, but I get a null value in it. What should I do to get the values? services. public function generateSales() { $sales = $this->createSale(); return $sales; } public function deleteSales($id) { $query = "DELETE FROM sales WHERE id=$id"; $sales = $this->mongo_db->deleteSales($query); return $sales; } controller. public function createSalesAction(Request $request) { $id = $this->request->get('id'); $sales = $this->sales_mongo_service->generateSales(); $this

Save your own templates from within AutoCAD or load them from a file (the best for designers and architects). Templates provide an efficient way to share design ideas with colleagues and export visual elements to different applications. (video: 0:59 min.) Copy and Paste: Align up to any 2 points in a line segment, face, or polyline, then paste that line as the current line. (video: 1:16 min.) You can draw 2D shapes with a single click, using 2D visual and a 2D tool such as line or rectangle. For faster input, use a larger number of points to draw a complex shape. (video: 0:50 min.) Select multiple items in a window, and convert them all to a single object, selecting a single copy of the original object. (video: 0:58 min.) Add geometry to any shape, by replacing the geometry for an existing face, or by adding new geometry to an existing face. (video: 0:45 min.) To align shapes in a drawing, you can now resize them or edit them in both 2D and 3D space. As you edit a shape, you can see its faces and edges simultaneously. (video: 0:51 min.) Buildings and 3D models, such as structures, can be selected as a single unit. And you can even select both the building and its foundation as a single unit. (video: 0:52 min.) Keep a history of your drawings. Create a backup at the beginning of a drawing session, then save changes as you go. Retain previous drawing sessions. (video: 0:45 min.) Use predefined commands for basic commands you're likely to use on most drawings, such as rotate, copy, and mirror, without having to memorize keyboard shortcuts. (video: 1:23 min.) Use the "Full Screen Zoom" tool to zoom in or out of your drawing, without a full drawing space. (video: 0:54 min.) View and edit files in multiple locations and at any time and from any device using an Always on network, Internet, or cloud connection. (video: 1:23 min.) Add the ability to work in full screen mode on any device. (video: 0:53 min.) Tasks:
